Raps fouled up shot at Magloire

YORK REPORT
martyr@toronto.com

Before Jamaal Magloire was traded to the Milwaukee Bucks last month, the six-foot, 10-inch center was the subject of behind-the-scenes efforts in hopes of getting himself dealt to the New Orleans Hornets to trade him, and specifically to the team in his home state.

Magloire quite sensibly felt he could fortify the Raptors in several areas — rebounding, shot-blocking, leadership, 2-on-1 defense. And when the deal didn't happen, the 22-year-old star was stunned.

He then privately accused the Raptors of fouling to step forth with realistic and/or fair trade offers. Yes, the Raptors talked to the Hornets.

But, no, they mysteriously refused to relinquish the player the Hornets wanted most, Morris B. Jr.

Instead, the Bucks offered Desmond Mason, probably a better all-arounder, and the deal was done.

I know all this because the man who had been personally asked by Magloire to encourage the Raptors to work out a trade, told me the story yesterday. And he told me it not to embarrass the Raptors but to express his dismay about the club's mismanagement.

The man is Jay Bhattacharya in Canada and headhunting the Raptors' No. 1 fan. He has never missed a game in Toronto. In fact, he's never even been late for one. He's paid more than $1 million for the court-side seats.

In the process, he has become a confidante and, in some cases, a business partner to a bevy of NBA players and coaches. He is close with Vince Carter, one of only a handful of Torontoans invited to the player's wedding in Florida last year.

Magloire also is one of Bhattacharya's pals, which is why he was asked by the center to try to arrange

But, he twice missed parts of the season with injuries, including the last four games of the regular season. He was coming off a concussion, 5510 yards with 25 touchdowns but also 24 interceptions.

Ray hasn't thrown a touchdown pass in six games, and it was backup Jason Printers who threw the game-winning 37-yard touchdown pass with six seconds to their '05-26 West Division semifinal win over the CFL.

Although Ray will get the start against B.C., Manitoba's Ryan Jackson will start the US-48 passing for 144 yards and a touchdown versus Calgary.

Edmonton captured the season series 2-1, including a victory to halt B.C.'s 11-game win streak to start the season with a 37-20 triumph on Sept. 24.
